TO THE FREEMEN OF THE 3D CONGRES-SIONAL DISTRICT OF VERMONT.

I find myself placed, by the course of events, in a position which requires me to address you. A Convention holden at Burlington on the 8th day of June last, nominated the Hon. George P. Manson as a candidate for Congress. With the proceedings of that convention a portion of the people were dissatisfied; and that dissatisfaction has, at length, resulted in the annunciation of myself as as a longer produced as the sample of myself as as a longer produced as the sample of myself as as a longer produced as the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of myself as as a longer produced by the sample of the fied; and that dissatisfaction has, at length, resulted in the annunciation of myself as an "independent candidate" in the Vergennes Vermonter, at the request of whigs in that quarter of this County, and, more recently, in the People's Press, at the request of whigs in Bristol in morther quarter.

I was aware, soon after the meeting of the convention, that individuals in various parts of this County had manifested a disposition to vote for me, notwithstanding the nomination of another, and, to use their own language, "whether I would or not;" but I had not the slightest expectation that the dissatisfaction would result in an "independent nomination." It was suggested to me to decline; but, se far as I could judge, the indications of a determination to support me were not such as to require it—believing, as I did that they were but sudden exhibitions of disappointed feeling, which might soon subside. In this however, I was mistaken, as the nominations to which I have referred, as well as other indications, have since shown me.

which I have reterred, as well as other indications, have since shown me.

The question is, therefore, at length, directly presented—Shall I decline? To this question I have given the consideration demanded by the number and character of those who have made me their candidate; and have come to the determination to ask them to withhold from me their votes. I do this with a full approximation in the content of them to withhold from me their votes. I do this with a full appreciation of the kindness of their intentions towards me personally, and in the exercise of every possible disposition to yield to their wishes whenever I can do it consistently with my sense of duty. Under present circumstances it is evident that I cannot longer remain silent without impliedly assenting to be in the field as a candidate; and my assenting to be in the field as a candislate; and my judgment is, that no good can acroe either to me personally, or to any interest which I value, from my consenting to stand in that position. I know that I have valued friends who think otherwise; but while I respect their motives, and acknowledge their kindness I must act on the convictions of my own judgment. In speaking of motives I must be permitted to say that the suggestion that the 'getting up' of my nomination in the Vermonter, was the work of a "Locofoco clique to divide the whigs," it is critically unfounded. Whoever will take the trouble to enquire, will find that the nomination originated with whigs as true and hearty as are to be found in the District. They are not, it is true, among what are called Leaders; but they are, nevertheless, entitled to as much respect as any leaders can be, and much more than some deserve. Such, too, is the character of those in other parts of this County, as well as in other portions of the District, whose feelings accord with what is called the "Vergennes movement."

by "Vergennes movement."
Sympathizing thus, as these friends of mine do in sympathizing thus, as these triends of mine do in the questions which divide the leading parties. I may be permitted to ask them not to forger what they owe the country in the strength of their desire to serve me. I am unable to perceive that their votes for me can do any good; while they may be made available can do any good; while they may be made available to sustain, in the person of another our cherished principles and policy. It is to sustain these that I shall give my vote for Mr. Marsh. I shall do this in an undoubting confidence in his integrity and uprightness as well as in the soundness of his views upon all the questions in regard to which he may be called to act as a representative of the people. In saying this, I refer not only to the standing topics of discussion between the leading parties, but to that other great question in which I take a deep and increasing interest. I need not speak of his views on the sall ject of slavery, may are before the plant of this standard to the proper of the policy of the plant of this parties.

I have heard much said upon the subject of slavery men who scarcely knew what they said, or cared by uses what scarcely knew what they said, or cared even, so that it might serve the purposes of the moment. Such is not Mr. Marsh, if I know him. He has spoken right, and will I trust act right. Enough surely will be see of the slaveholding and slave drieting spirit, if he remains long in Congress, to stimulate him to decided and efficient action. The time is, moreover, rapidly approaching when this great subject will be forced upon the attention of all; and when the question, "what has the North to do with slavery?" will be soberly asked by no man who shall desire to maintain the character of a statesman or a christian. There may continue to be "diversities of operation;" but the spirit will be one—a spirit of modern of the neighborhood of Chester, Pa. during hostility to slavery, not only as a sear upon Human Nature, but as utterly hostile to the spirit of our institutions, and if long cherished, tatal to the existence of our Union.

our institutions, and if long cherished, tatal to the existence of our Union.

I have spoken of Mr. Marsh from a desire to do him justice; and of American slavery in my settled purpose to omit no proper occasion while I live, he the consequences to me what they may, to assail that giant iniquity, and contribute what I may to scourge it from the face of the earth.

I take this occasion to thank my excellent friends for their manifestations of attachment to me, and shall carry a grateful recollection of it to the latest moment of my life. But circumstances seem to forbid that it should be of any avail except to give me the cheering assurance that I have so descharged my pub-

Dishonorable parture of a Loco Foco Bank.—
The Harrisburgh Telegraph of the 2d mst. gives the particulars of one of the most fraudulent and wicked failures of a banking institution, even in Pennsylvania—that of the Northampton Bank at Allentown, Lobigh county: a Loco Foco institution from the beginning, in all its phases, and official management. It seems that after lingering along in had repute, with multitudinous devices and trickeries, to keep up the confidence of the public in its solvency, it has "died the death" and left the whole community of the secconnected of the public of its solvency. It has "died the death" and left the whole community of the section of country wherein it is located, to mourn'ts notes unredeemed, thousands of hard working, industrious farmers and mechanics, swindled out of their earnings, and its Stockholders robbed, cheated, and defrauded out of every dollar of their capital. The report of the Investigating Committee makes the defifrauded out of every dollar of their capital. The report of the Investigating Committee makes the deficiency and loss sustained to amount to OVER FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS!! Among the impact notes found was one from AMOS KENDALL, given when he was Post Master General, and when Rice, the President of the Banh, was a Muit Contracter, under him!! The note was never paid, and it is likely, was NEVER INTENDED TO BE PAID, being discounted by Rice, with that understanding, on account of official services rendered!—

Better Mare by Lightning. The Belfast Me. Journal says that during a thunder storm on Sunday, 16th alt. the house of Mr. Benjamin Douglas, in Unity, was struck by lightning. No one was seriously injured; but, among other strange doings, the electric fluid entered the charm in which the family preserve cream, and instantaneously converted the cream into butter, as effectually as an hour's charming would have done. If the drawning halffelie is purely electric, as some one asserts that he has lately proved perhaps this occurrence may serve as a hint to some of our Mesmerizers, to make themselves useful in the dairy.
